Catholic Sistas

about the blog
Created in August 2011, the mission is rooted in John Paul II's call for the faithful to engage in the New Evangelization, which was encouraged by Pope Emeritus Benedict XVI and is being realized through Pope Francis' leadership. With over 50 contributors in the United States, and some guest posts from abroad, we seek to reach Catholics and non-Catholics where they are in their understanding of the Faith. The goal is to challenge readers and contributors alike to stretch, grow, and immerse ourselves in the Faith more deeply, which is achieved through a variety of topics. As our catch phrase goes - "We are a group of women who share a passion for the Faith by blogging. From humor to critical thinking pieces, we'll keep you on your toes!" - you will find that our posts cover many different topics regarding the Faith. With so many contributors, the approach and voice to the topics also varies.

about the audience
81% women
25% 25-34 years old
23% 35-44 years old
57% have children
39% 50-100K income
50% graduate and post graduate

about the projects
Catholic Nerd series
Prayer Campaigns
Handy-Dandy Resource Lists
Saint of the Day
Lady Ribbon (first Catholic pro-life ribbon)
Lenten Photo Challenge
What's For Dinner? #WFD
Ongoing prayer list
Fruits of the Holy Spirit series
Anima Christi line-by-line series
Proverbs 31 Catholic Woman series
Confessions of the Original Online Junkie series
Cecile Richards doesn't speak for me campaign Raising Saints Catholic Homeschool series

about the foundress
Martina is wife to Neil and homeschooling mom to six adorable kidlets, the oldest born in 1996 and the youngest in 2012. When not busy managing the home, the kiddos, and Catholic Sistas, she can be found working on her hair bow business, HolyHairBows.com or busy with various projects and events at her home parish, St. William in Round Rock, Texas. The ministry nearest and dearest to her heart is the parish program, Jesus is Lord, which focuses on bringing all Catholics to a deeper, richer relationship with Christ. It is a program that deeply affects the mission of Catholic Sistas.

2014.